The court said that it was established by the evidence that the plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence, that he slipped on the platform, that it was practical to cover the machine, and that it was the duty of the defendant to do so, and that, if the defendant had performed this duty, the injury would not have occurred, and that these facts justified a recovery. Not one word here that the slipping was the proximate cause of the injury and not the unguarded machinery. The opinion of Judge Haight says: It is quite true that accidents do happen which are so extraordinary that a careful, prudent person could not anticipate they were liable to occur. In such cases the court may be justified in disposing of them as presenting only questions of law; but ordinarily they present questions of...
